at the Menuhin Hall, Stoke D'Abernon,

Friday, 5th June 2009

Ptolemy Dean specialises in the restoration of historic buildings, as well as designing new buildings in keeping with their surroundings. He has written 'the more people who can read and enjoy historic architecture, the more importance architecture will be given in our Society'.

In Surrey his recent commissions include work at Farnham and Kingston. He took part in the BBC series "The Perfect Village" on Radio Four when he discussed the qualities which make a perfect village, but is perhaps best known as presenter of the BBC TV Series "Restoration", as a result of which the Watts Gallery at Compton secured the public vote and restoration is now in progress.

Doors open at 6.30 p.m.
Cash bar will be available from 6.45 p.m.
Lecture to commence at 7.45 p.m.
