Recently the number of people using the coaches has varied enormously and for this reason fares must be based initially on a low number of passengers. When a coach is well patronised a refund will be made as has been the practice in the past.

On the other hand it is regretted that coaches can no longer be run at a loss, so that in future, if within 10 days of a visit there are not sufficient bookings the coach will have to be cancelled. Please book early and give a telephone number.

NOTES AND QUERIES

Dorking; Clarendon House
For several years Clarendon House, Dorking, was threatened with demolition for a scheme of road "improvement". After the road scheme had been dropped, demolition was proposed because the building, although listed and in local authority ownership, had become "beyond economic repair". The threats were averted as a result of pressure from, among others, this Society but only after expensive public enquiries and more neglect.

Eventually a purchaser was found and Tarmac Construction have now created a new interior to be used as the head offices of the Dorking roofing contractors, Briggs Amasco. The offices occupy the 18th century shell which had to be heavily restored and a new wing. The former offices of Briggs Amasco, a period property at Goodwyns Place, Dorking, is now for sale.

Earlswood: Golf Club House (TQ278489)

During January the Holmesdale Archaeological Group carried out a short excavation around the derelict Golf Club House in Common Road, Earlswood. This is the site, according to Hooper, of the discovery around the turn of the century of the medieval waster jug now on display in Guildford Museum. The jug was found “three feet below the surface at the bottom of a hole paved with ironstone”. It had been hoped that evidence would be found to confirm that this was the site of a pottery kiln. Four trenches were dug, one to the front and three to the rear of the house. From the largest, c10 x 2m, three sherds of medieval pottery were found. Five further sherds came from a smaller trench adjacent, to the rear of the house. None of the structures or layers encountered could be dated any earlier than c1850. Although the eight small medieval sherds are broadly similar to those from the Bushfield Shaw kiln (three are fragments from cream-slipped or ‘Earlswood’ Type jugs) this scarcely proves the case for a kiln although this must remain the most likely possibility for the occurrence of the waster jug. Further developments must await the possible demolition of the Club House.

Ewell: Conversion of Lower Mill

Architects Masini Franklin have converted the listed Lower Mill at Ewell into offices and added a new rear extension. The modern addition is the latest phase in the construction of the mill which is said to consist of Georgian and Victorian additions to an original 17th century building.

Frillinghurst, near Chiddingfold. Iron working site. (SU 939344)

During reconstruction of a road bridge the previously unknown site of a furnace was discovered about 1½ miles S.W. of Chiddingfold. An area of clay about 3m long and 1m deep was exposed in the stream bank containing highly burnt 5cm-thick bricks and, to each side, about 5m apart, rough sandstone blocks still in place. A curved loading embankment terminates close by. The site is just over 1km below the complex which made cannons from about 1570.

About 1km upstream in the middle of Frillinghurst Wood (SU 930343) lie the remains of another bay, possibly a pen-pond, with timber baulks still in situ. There seems to be no previous record of this bay although Straker may have been aware of the first one.

A fuller note is being written for the Collections.

Hassell Pictures of Surrey

The late James Batley left the first draft of a catalogue of the microfilm record he had made of John and Edward Hassell’s pictures of Surrey in the 1820’s. It is intended to publish this catalogue in the 1984 volume of the Collections and the writer is preparing the manuscript for publication. As a tribute to the enormous effort James made to document these pictures it is intended to make the list not only a catalogue of the 1,780 pictures on the microfilm but also the others he located. From his records it has been possible to list 2,160 pictures so far. Information on any more would be welcomed by the writer.

In addition to the title of each picture it is hoped to make brief comments on some of the pictures which might assist users to identify houses, to indicate their fate, or to identify the viewpoint shown. Any comments of this nature should be sent to the writer. A complete set of enprints from the film may be consulted in the Surrey County Library, Local Studies Library, Guildford or Lambeth Archives (Minet Library). In addition a set of enprints was distributed between the main branch libraries in Surrey so that the local pictures may be consulted there. Where the library holds the original pictures the relevant photos were placed in a nearby branch library. Enprints of the places now in London boroughs were placed in the nearest Surrey County Library (mainly at Bourne Hall, Ewell). Copies of the microfilm were purchased also by Croydon, Guildhall, Merton (Wimbledon), Richmond, and Sutton Libraries and also Surrey Record Office.

To the Ordnance Survey:

4/1/83

Dear Sir,

I recently glanced with interest at the new edition of the Ordnance Survey's map of Ancient Britain and was most interested to see that a new Neolithic site had been discovered on the Surrey Weald between Outwood and Lingfield in the east of the County.

This area has hitherto been thought of as little populated in prehistory and this new discovery of yours is most exciting.

One thing still puzzles me however. It strikes me as being extremely odd that this new site bears the same name ('Whitchaw') as the well known Neolithic causewayed camp on Brighton racecourse. This I feel requires some explanation!

Yours mystified,

David W. Williams
Archaeological Secretary
Holmesdale Natural History Club.

21.1.83

Dear Mr Williams,

I am sorry to have to dissipate your understandable excitement over the discovery of a causewayed camp on the Surrey Weald. Unfortunately the truth, as no doubt you already suspect, is much more mundane. The National Grid Reference of Whitehawk was erroneously written down as T03344 (correctly TQ3304) with the result you know.

Such errors do occur but usually they are picked up before publication. Regrettably Whitehawk slipped through the system and was not detected in time.

Yours in contrition,

D. J. Stagg
The Rankine Collection

Farnham Museum has recently acquired the late W F Rankine’s collection of archaeological material. Rankine was an eminent local archaeologist particularly noted for his contribution to Mesolithic research in Britain, through his work in West Surrey.

As well as the well-documented mainly Mesolithic material from Rankine’s own excavations and fieldwork, notably from the Farnham Sewage Works site, the collection includes much other local material of various periods. More information will be available on closer examination of the material but the collection evidently contains material from several other private collections from the Farnham area (including those of Harold Falkner and Canon O’Farrell) and from some of the Bronze Age and Roman sites reported in the SAS “Survey of the Prehistory of the Farnham Area”.

The collection was donated to the Museum by the Ellis Campbell Group, who recently acquired it together with several Farnham properties from the Borelli estate.

Rotherhithe: Conversion of Thames Tunnel Mills.

Thames Tunnel Mills at Rotherhithe have recently been converted into ‘fair rent’ flats. The deep-plan problem of the building has been solved by creating a generous atrium space in the middle to let the light in. The atrium rises seven storeys and is topped by a glazed conservatory which leads out onto a roof garden. Only the brick shell of the original building remains, the rest was built from new inside.

Help with Letraset

The Editorial Committee holds a selection of partly used sheets of Letraset which are available on loan to draughtsmen, authors, etc. who are producing reports. This offer is intended to save the considerable cost of buying a complete sheet where only a few words are really needed.

Please write to Lady Hanworth, Quoin Cottage, Shamley Green, Guildford.

INSURANCE – DIG DIRECTORS PLEASE NOTE

EXCAVATION INSURANCE—Directors of excavations are reminded that it is essential that they arrange for insurance cover for the excavation that they are undertaking. For the purpose of insurance the term 'excavation' covers all aspects of excavation where there is a ‘third party risk’ and not simply ‘dirt archaeology’. Under certain circumstances ‘field walking’ and ‘measuring buildings’ would require cover. If in doubt, or to register for insurance cover, please contact R. J. Webber at 8 Kelvin Grove, Hook, Chessington. Telephone: 01 397 4885 (evenings and weekends). Please remember that “COVER AFTER THE EVENT IS TOO LATE!”
PERSONAL ACCIDENT INSURANCE—All volunteers on excavations, including field walking, measuring and other connected activities should be fully aware that the Society’s insurance policy does not cover them for injury or sickness, and, thereby, loss of earnings, should that injury be self inflicted or the result of their own neglect. All volunteers should, therefore, arrange for PERSONAL ACCIDENT INSURANCE through their own insurers before they engage in excavation activities. Remember please that if you put a pickaxe through someone else’s foot, or they do it to you, that will be alright but if you put it through your own foot then that will be your responsibility and nobody else’s! Directors of Excavations please bring this matter to the attention of all your volunteer diggers.

INDEMNITIES.

Some indemnities required by landowners and contractors go beyond the acceptable liability of Surrey Archaeological Society and its insurance cover for excavations. In future all indemnity forms MUST be signed by one or other of the OFFICERS OF THE SOCIETY who have been appointed by The Council of the Society to act in this matter.

A copy of every indemnity required must be forwarded to Mr R. J. Webber at 8 Kelvin Grove, Hook, Chessington, Surrey, KT9 1DP who will, where necessary, clear the terms and conditions with the insurers. A further copy should, at the same time, be sent to the Society’s Hon LEGAL ADVISER.

LOCAL SOCIETIES or GROUPS excavating under Surrey Archaeological Society’s name or using the Society’s insurance cover MUST COMPLY with this procedure. Other excavators would be well advised to take legal advice before signing any form of indemnity.

The following officers of the Society have been authorised by the Council to sign indemnities on behalf of the Society:– The President The Secretary The Hon Treasurer.

Nonsuch Antiquarian Society Exhibition: September 1982

This exhibition was held from 9-25 September and included exhibits from Epsom, Ewell, Cheam and Sutton. They covered a wide range of subjects in archaeology and local history. Among them were items about local families and their mansions, mathematical tiles, memorials of St. Mary’s church, Ewell, a reconstruction of a well excavated in Epsom, townscapes of Cheam and Sutton, and a demonstration of the recording of an excavation including processing routines.

This exhibition represents a very satisfactory demonstration of what co-operation between a local society and a museum can produce.

Excavations Committee Annual Symposium
7 May 1983 in the Martineau Hall, Dorking Halls, Dorking.

It has unfortunately not proved possible to complete the programme for this symposium in time for it to appear in this Bulletin. It will, however, follow the usual pattern of some six illustrated talks starting at 10.30 a.m. and closing about 4/4.30 p.m., with a lunch break from about 12.30 to 2.00 p.m. to allow time to view the exhibits. The meeting will be chaired by Vivien Ettlinger, and it is anticipated that subjects will include excavations at Southwark, Croydon and Kingston, with perhaps also an example of the use of mediaeval documentary evidence for the area around Farnham. The programme should be complete by the time this Bulletin appears, and details may be obtained from the writer at County Hall (01-546 1050 ext. 3665) or from Mrs. Kathleen Needham at Castle Arch. Forms for the booking of display space will be circulated in the usual way.

Coffee and tea will be available at a small charge at the breaks, and afternoon teas may be ordered in advance (at a cost of 50p). Admittance will be £1.20 at the door, but tickets may be bought in advance for £1 including postage. Applications for tickets and afternoon teas should be made to Mrs K. Needham at Castle Arch, Guildford. Cheques should be made payable to Surrey Archaeological Society. There is ample car parking space adjacent to the Dorking Halls.
