OBITUARY: MR. J. W. LINDUS FORGE

We record with great regret the death of one of the Society's longest standing members, Mr. J. W. Lindus Forge, who died in January following a road accident.

Jim Lindus Forge joined the Society in 1933. When the Society's Conservation Committee was set up in 1970, he was an obvious choice as a founder member, since he was a professional architect who worked in a practice which specialised in the preservation of historic buildings. In 1971 he became the Chairman of the Committee, a post he held till 1975. Even after his retirement as Chairman, the Committee continued to benefit from his experience and skill in the conservation field, since he continued to serve as local representative in the Elmbridge District, advising on many cases involving Listed Buildings and appearing at Public Inquiries. He also advised on specialist matters elsewhere in the County, including making a record of the historic Baynards House during its demolition, and served as the Society's representative on the Surrey Historic Buildings Trust.

His wisdom and humour will be greatly missed by all those who worked with him over the years.

S.A.S. VISIT TO BAGSHOT AND WINDLESHAM

has now been arranged for Saturday, 19th October. Full details will be announced in a later Bulletin.

S.A.S. Excavations Committee Annual Symposium

The Symposium was held on 30th March 1985 at Dorking Halls and was extremely well attended. The day provided the audience with a balanced view of recent professional and amateur work, both within and just out of the County. The programme commenced with Judie English's account of the Roman 'Posting Station' and accompanying settlement at Alfuldean and of her work in recording the section exposed in a road ditch that has been cut through the site. This has revealed that the extra mural settlement was much larger than previously suspected and lay along Stane Street to the south of the 'Station' itself. This was followed by Jeremy Hodgkinson's review of the multifarious activities of the Wealden Iron Research Group. The Group's fieldwork has added considerably to the number of known sites, especially of the earlier bloomery type and has had the added bonus of finding a number of artefacts, such as the steel tipped cannon borer now on display in Lewes. Anna Mercer then described the extremely important Rankine Collection, which has been acquired recently by Farnham Museum. The Collection consists of material of all periods, though perhaps with greatest emphasis on the Mesolithic. In the main the finds come from the Farnham area, though no doubt references to a pot from Dorking will not have escaped local ears! Lesley Adkins concluded the morning session by describing her reassessment of the material from the ditched enclosure on the Queen Mary's Hospital site at Carshalton. This enclosure is now considered to be late Bronze Age in date and to have gone out of use around 700 BC. Many questions remain unanswered and an excavation will be essential if the site is ever threatened with development.
David Field started the afternoon off by describing his continuing excavation work on the newly discovered Felday enclosure at Holmbury St. Mary. This earthwork covers an area twice as large as the nearby and better known Holmbury Hillfort, and is dated to the period 50BC – 70AD. Its discovery shows that in all probability many other earthworks remain undetected in the wood and heathland areas of the County. Stuart Needham then brought us up to date on the research excavations at Runnymede Bridge. These have shown that the Bronze Age occupation levels extend to the west of the areas examined during the earlier rescue excavations. Deep trenching has revealed Neolithic material on the site and intriguingly also evidence for the presence of beavers in the Thames at this period. The lectures ended with Robin Densmore’s description of recent archaeological excavations in Southwark. These have taken place on a number of development sites and have produced evidence of multi period occupation of the area. Perhaps the Roman period produced the most spectacular results with its large masonry buildings, inscription, an amphora complete with mackerel heads, burials and much more.

The programme was completed with the presentation of the 1985 Margary Award to John Chapman for his work on the dog bones from a Roman Ritual Shaft at Staines. The Excavations Committee very much hope that John’s example will encourage others to enter for the Competition in future years.

John Gower proposed a vote of thanks to Eric Wood for acting as Chairman and for the way in which he quietly but firmly kept the proceedings to schedule. The Symposium then closed allowing a further chance to view the exhibits and bookstalls, which were as usual, of a very high standard.

The Committee would like to thank the speakers and the exhibitors for their contributions, Susan Janaway and Roger Ellaby for their administrative work, Jenny Moss for her excellent teas and indeed all those whose hard work in the background helped to make the day go smoothly. Finally a thank you to the many people who came along and whose presence as an audience made the day so worthwhile.

You might like to note that the next Symposium will be held on 22nd February, 1986.

Excavations on the site of the Dominican Friary at Guildford
This lecture, given by Rob Poulton, and arranged jointly with the Department of Educational Studies, University of Surrey, was held at the University on March 7th and attracted an audience of 130. Rob is to be congratulated on his excellent presentation, and the Society is most grateful to MEPC Ltd., the owners of the Friary Centre, for providing the refreshments before the lecture.

Equipment for Excavations
The Society has some excavation equipment which may be borrowed by members or Groups. In addition to trowels, buckets, wheelbarrows, the equipment available includes: fencing (electric and chestnut paling), plastic sheeting, flotation sieves, Elsan + chemicals, Calor gas cooker and surveying equipment. A complete list is available from Mrs. Ann Watson, Well Cottage, Hatchford End, Cobham KT11 1NA (Tel. Cobham 62983).

In some cases delivery of small items of equipment can be arranged.
